

If you could take the next three years to build a prototype relationship, togetherness, machine, dream, reality - what would it be?

A time machine.

Concrete actions towards climate change

stop the wars on drugs at a global level, more education and less moral values is needed

Connect city dwellers with farmers next to us. Establish feedback loops. Create relationships.

A rhythm dojo, for building a regular, recurring practice of collaborative rhythm. Democracy in music.

A global (political) framework to recognize the existence of highly evolved extraterrestrial life and integrate our society to a larger stellar society.

a prototype relationship together with the dreamworld. In a dream we can find interesting things.

Something that helps us with the next pandemic

A community of decolonized symbiotic living.

If you could take the next three years to build a prototype relationship, togetherness, machine, dream, reality - what would it be?

... it would be a non-binary reality ... a togetherness of human beings liberated from gender attributions/mutual expectations of gender performance ... our living together could/need then be negotiated in a new and more inclusive way ... lou liska

A sustainable AI business

Support Myself to be convinced about my own reality in the smallest things, to heal mental health Issues Occurring from the bigger view

Expand and develop What Makes Us Human, through the lens of art and genomics - it is just a beginning:
whatmakesushuman.org

strong educational system for every human

I would include garden, dog - so it will be soft and hairy :)

More and stronger trust in strangers and people on the street