Antiwarcoalition.art as guest at the ZKM
»When language is lost. Art's Possibilities in the Face of War«

What can art do in the face of war? How should or can artists work when confronted by the catastrophe of military conflict in their country? What kind of language would help them to describe reality and cope with trauma?

The theme evening on 28 September 2022 from 5 p.m. – 9 p.m. at the ZKM | Center for Art and Media explores the question as to what extent artistic work can be a communicative tool against war. Admission is free.

The Ukrainian curator and researcher Tatiana Kochubinska worked at the PinchukArtCentre in Kiev until before the war. She was a fellow at the ZKM | Center for Art and Media, where she currently continues to work as a curator. Most recently, she was responsible for selecting the films for an open-air screening that dealt cinematographically with the war in her home country.

Antiwarcoalition.art is an international platform of cultural workers against the war from Ukraine and other parts of the world. It is both an archive and a discussion forum which aims to collect, share, and disseminate artistic statements against military aggression and political oppression.
